FAQ's: When should I sign up for Medicare?

You become eligible to apply for Medicare three months before your 65th birthday, with coverage starting on the first day of the month in which you turn 65 (unless your birthday is on the first day of the month, in which case coverage starts the month before your birthday).

Your Medicare Initial Enrollment Period runs for seven months, starting three months before the month you turn 65 and continuing for three months after your birth month. If you're under 65 and have a disability, you're automatically enrolled in Part A and Part B after you get Social Security or Railroad Retirement benefits for 24 months. Please note that if you're already receiving Social Security benefits, you'll automatically be enrolled in Original Medicare. If you're choosing a Part D plan or a Medicare Advantage Plan, you must enroll in that plan separately.

Medicare beneficiaries who miss their Initial Enrollment Period for Part B coverage must wait until the General Enrollment Period (GEP), which runs between January 1 and March 31 each year. If you enroll in Part B during the GEP, your Part B coverage will begin July 1 of the year you enroll.

What happens if I don't enroll in Medicare when I'm eligible?

For most people, there's a 10% premium penalty for each year you wait beyond your Initial Enrollment Period. And you'll have to pay that penalty as long as you have Part B. If you qualify, you can sign up for premium-free Part A (which covers hospital services) any time, with no penalty.

Not everyone qualifies for premium-free Part A. You must have been working a certain amount of time and paying federal taxes. A person is automatically enrolled in Part A if they have been receiving Social Security benefits for at least four months before their 65th birthday. Otherwise, they must file an application with Social Services within six months of the month they turn 65, and they must have Part B to get premium-free Part A. You may also owe a late-enrollment penalty for Part D if at any time after your Initial Enrollment Period is over there's a period of 63 or more days in a row when you don't have Part D or other creditable prescription drug coverage. You'll be able to sign up for Part D during the Medicare Open Enrollment Period (sometimes referred to as the Annual Election Period, or AEP), which runs between October 15 and December 7 each year.

What does Original Medicare cover?

Original Medicare is a fee-for-service plan that covers certain healthcare services and medical supplies. You can go to any doctor or hospital that accepts Medicare. When you go to those doctors or hospitals, you can use your red, white, and blue Medicare card to receive care. However, with Original Medicare there are costs you must pay, like coinsurance, copayments, deductibles, and some medical expenses that aren't covered. That's why getting a Medicare Advantage Plan (Part C) like Healthfirst Medicare Advantage HMO may help with most of your medical expenses.

How is Healthfirst Medicare Advantage different from Original Medicare?

In most cases, Healthfirst can actually save you money on your Medicare coverage. Some of our plans have no plan premium; however, you need to continue paying your Medicare Part B premium. Healthfirst Medicare Advantage Plans also offer additional benefits on top of Original Medicare, like:

- Prescription drug coverage
- OTC allowance
- Dental coverage
- Transportation to and from covered doctor appointments
- Vision coverage
- FREE 24/7 Nurse Help Line
- Hearing coverage

Who can join Healthfirst Medicare Advantage (HMO)?

To join a Healthfirst Medicare Advantage Plan, you must be entitled to Medicare Part A, be enrolled in and continue to pay for Medicare Part B, not have End-Stage Renal Disease (ESRD), and live in the Healthfirst service area, which includes the following counties in New York: Bronx, Kings, Nassau, New York, Queens, and Richmond. Plans vary by county.

What happens to my Medicare benefits if I join Healthfirst?

When you join a Healthfirst Medicare Advantage Plan (Part C), you're simply telling Medicare that you prefer to have your hospital insurance (Part A) and medical insurance (Part B) managed by Healthfirst. You also get additional benefits, including access to our extensive network of doctors, hospitals, urgent care centers, and pharmacies, and in most cases, prescription drug coverage (Part D). As long as you continue to pay your Medicare Part B premium, if applicable, you will always be entitled to Medicare.

Does Healthfirst have a network of doctors?

Yes. Healthfirst has a large network that includes more than 30,000 healthcare provider office locations in the New York metropolitan area. If your doctor is in our network, you may continue to see him or her.
